Carey Olsen lawyers contribute to "International Commercial Dispute Resolution" text

Lawyers from Carey Olsen's litigation groups in Guernsey and Jersey have contributed chapters to the newly published book International Commercial Dispute Resolution.

The book, edited by Jonathan Warne of Nabarro LLP and published by Tottel Publishing is aimed at those who advise clients in relation to international commercial disputes and answers questions such as: "what can we expect if we litigate in Guernsey?" and "are we able to enforce an arbitration award in Jersey?" or "is mediation mandated in the UK?"

Lawyers from Carey Olsen have provided the Jersey and Guernsey chapters which provide a useful, detailed and up-to-date reference for those considering dispute resolution in the Jersey or Guernsey Courts.

The Guernsey chapter was written by Advocate Karen Le Cras, partner and Advocate Julia White, an associate. The Jersey chapter was the product of collaboration between several members of the Jersey litigation group and Advocate Nicole Langlois, a former partner at Carey Olsen and now a barrister at XXIV Old Buildings. Key areas covered by each chapter are court structures, commencing and defending actions, procedural steps to trial, the enforcement of judgments, appeals and key features of litigation in each jurisdiction.

Karen Le Cras, partner of Carey Olsen said: "Working on such a high profile book gives us the opportunity to promote the Guernsey and Jersey jurisdictions, and also to challenge ourselves on how well we know our Court systems.

"Writing part of the book has been very helpful to our team, allowing us the time to sit outside our day to day work and really think about the way the courts work, and to understand how we can improve the way we do things."
